writing nonfiction represents a big step for most students most young writers are not intimidated by personal narrative fiction or even poetry but when they try to put together a teaching book report or persuasive essay they often feel anxious and frustrated

Joann Portalupi and Ralph Fletcher believe that young nonfiction writers supply plenty of passion, keen interest, and wonder. Teachers can provide concrete strategies to help students scaffold their ideas as they write in this challenging genre. Like the authors' best-selling Craft Lessons Teaching Writing K-8, this book is divided into sections for K-2, 3-4, and middle school grades 5-8. These divisions reflect various differences between emerging, competent, and fluent writers. In each section, you'll find a generous collection of craft lessons directed at the genre that's most appropriate for that particular age. In the K-2 section, for example, a number of craft lessons focus on the all-about or concept book. In the 3-4 section, there are several lessons on biography. In the 5-8 section, a series of lessons addresses expository writing. Throughout the book, each of the 80 lessons is presented on a single page in an easy-to-read format. Every lesson features three teaching guidelines: discussion, a brief look at the reasons for teaching the particular element of craft specifically in a nonfiction context, how to teach it, concrete language showing exactly how a teacher might bring this craft element to students in writing conferences or a small group setting, resource material (specific book or text referred to in the craft lesson), including trade books or a piece of student writing. In the appendixes, this book will help students breathe voice into lifeless dump-truck writing and improve their nonfiction writing by making it clearer, more authoritative, and more organized. Nonfiction craft lessons give teachers a wealth of practical strategies to help students grow into strong writers as they explore and explain the world around them. Be sure to look at the when students write videotapes too.

Shelley Peterson believes students become better writers through guided instruction and self-assessment. Guided Writing Instruction is a great source of ideas for teaching writing in any classroom. This resource includes ideas for teaching informational and narrative writing, classroom-tested teaching and assessment tools, solutions for students who struggle with starting the writing process, suggestions for working with diverse groups of students.
