millions of americans have been thrilled scared titillated and shocked by exploitation movies low budget films with many scenes of sex violence and other potentially lurid elements the term derives from the fact that promoters of such films exploit the contents in advertising that plays up the sexual or violent aspects of the films this is the first comprehensive study of the american exploitation film to be published it discusses five distinct genres the teen movie the sexploitation film the martial arts movie the blaxploitation film and the lawbreaker picture contained within these genres are many popular american film types including beach movies biker pictures and women s prison movies the study provides a history and sociopolitical analysis of each genre focusing on significant films in those genres it also discusses the economics of exploitation films and their place in the motion picture industry the development of drive in theaters the significance of the teenage audience and the effect of the videocassette finally the book applies major film and cultural theories to establish an aesthetic for evaluating the exploitation film and to explore the relationship between film and audience can i contribute to science do i like to work on the problems of science how do scientists know what they know would i like to be become a scientist these are questions that interest new science students the authors provide teachers with an approach to foster and answer these questions by concentrating on learners and learning they argue that students are typically taught from a disciplinary perspective of science using this lens students are viewed as people who need to learn a particular canon of information methods and ways of knowing about the world a perspective that may be useful for practicing scientists but not ideal for young learners in this disciplinary approach to science education there is little room for development as a scientist in contrast the approach championed by kirch and amoroso places learner questions about the world at the forefront of teaching and learning and treats science as a system of human activity the historical explorations theoretical insights and practical advice presented here are appropriate for all ages and educational settings in being and becoming scientists today the authors provide new tools for thinking about science ideas for how to reveal the multiple stories of knowledge production to learners and approaches to teaching science as a collective process rather than a series of contributions made by famous individuals in these ways the authors promote the idea that all science learners contribute to the science in our lives
