how and why cities have become the predominant sites for revolutionary upheavals in the contemporary world examining the changing character of revolution around the world the revolutionary city focuses on the impact that the concentration of people power and wealth in cities exercises on revolutionary processes and outcomes once predominantly an urban and armed affair revolutions in the twentieth century migrated to the countryside as revolutionaries searched for safety from government repression and discovered the peasantry as a revolutionary force but at the end of the twentieth century as urban centers grew revolution returned to the city accompanied by a new urban civic repertoire espousing the containment of predatory government and relying on visibility and the power of numbers rather than arms using original data on revolutionary episodes since 1900 public opinion surveys and engaging examples from around the world mark beissinger explores the causes and consequences of the urbanization of revolution in the late twentieth and early twenty first centuries beissinger examines the compact nature of urban revolutions as well as their rampant information problems and heightened uncertainty he investigates the struggle for control over public space why revolutionary contention has grown more pacified over time and how revolutions involving the rapid assembly of hundreds of thousands in central urban spaces lead to diverse ad hoc coalitions that have difficulty producing substantive change the revolutionary city provides a new understanding of how revolutions happen and what they might look like in the future best known for his notorious rivers of blood speech in 1968 and his outspoken opposition to immigration enoch powell was one of the most controversial figures in british political life in the second half of the twentieth century and a formative influence on what came to be known as thatcherism telling the story of powell s political life from the 1950s onwards paul corthorn s intellectual biography goes beyond a fixation on the rivers of blood speech to bring us a man who thought deeply about and often took highly unusual and sometimes apparently contradictory positions on the central political debates of the post 1945 era denying the existence of the cold war at one stage going so far as to advocate the idea of an alliance with the soviet union advocating free market economics long before it was fashionable while remaining a staunch defender of the idea of a national health service vehemently opposing british membership of the european economic community arguing for the closer integration of northern ireland with the rest of the uk and in the 1980s supporting the campaign for unilateral nuclear disarmament in the process powell emerges as more than just a deeply divisive figure but as a seminal political intellectual of his time paying particular attention to the revealing inconsistencies in powell s thought and the significant ways in which his thinking changed over time corthorn argues that powell s diverse campaigns can nonetheless still be understood as a coherent whole if viewed as part of a long running and wide ranging debate set against the backdrop of the long term decline in britain s international military and economic position in the decades after 1945 master s thesis from the year 2004 in the subject politics topic peace and conflict security grade 2 b university of kent brussels school of international studies language english abstract although the world stood united behind america when the dust of the collapsed twin towers of the world trade centre settled differences between the united states and europe soon became apparent europe might have supported the us in afghanistan both politically and militarily but diverging interests already became apparent when the us sidelined nato and preferred to lead operation enduring freedom itself the dispute escalated over the us plans to continue the war on terror in iraq here it emerged that the us and europe do not share the same world view while the us seem to perceive the world in hobbesian terms and believe that military strength is the only means to achieve security europe appears to understand security in the kantian sense and believes that perpetual peace can be achieved the question that divided europe and the us over iraq then is more than a simple difference of opinion but reflects a deep philosophical division can global security be achieved by force or through sustained dedication to a set of normative principles implemented by the world community consequently the counterterrorism strategies formulated in europe and the us are of a fundamentally different nature which cannot be explained merely by the discrepancy in military capabilities if that would be the case europe would have begun to build up its military potential by now acknowledging that terrorism has become one of the most pressing political problems david whittaker the aim of this paper is to compare the us and the european approach to global terrorism establish reasons for the differences and evaluate which approach might be more effective as september 11 has changed our perception of security by demonstrating that even the us is despite its unrivalled military superiority vulnerable to attack carried out by just 19 men armed with cardboard cutters we should remain aware that the responses we chose to these attacks reflect our dedication to human rights the rule of law and indeed freedom relying on military strength is easier than to acknowledge that terrorism is caused by a fundamentally unjust economical and political world order that markedly favours the west yet it might ultimately prove to become more dangerous than terrorism itself as it does nothing to resolve the problem but reinforces the world order that is the cause of the problem catton treats the diem government on its own terms rather than as an appendage of american policy focusing on the decade from dien bien phu to diem s assassination in 1963 he examines the vietnamese leader s nation building and reform efforts particularly his strategic hamlet program which sought to separate guerrilla insurgents from the peasantry and build grassroots support for his regime catton s evaluation of the collapse of that program offers fresh insights into both diem s limitations as a leader and the ideological and organizational weaknesses of his government while his assessment of the evolution of washington s relations with saigon provides new insight into america s growing involvement in the vietnamese civil war
