the book offers a completely new view of language and of languages such as russian chinese bulgarian georgian danish and english by dividing them into three supertypes on the basis of a step by step examination of their relationship to perception and cognition their representation of situations and their use in oral and written discourse the dynamic processing of visual stimuli involves three stages input experience intake understanding and outcome a combination the very choice among three modalities of existence gives a language a certain voice either the voice of reality based on situations the speaker's voice involving experiences or the hearer's voice grounded on information this makes grammar a prime index all symbols are static and impotent and need a vehicle i.e. grammar which can bring them to the proper point of reference language is shown to be a living organism with a determinant category aspect mood or tense which conquers territory from other potential competitors trying to create harmony between verbal and nominal categories it is demonstrated that the communication processes are different in the three supertypes although in all three cases the speaker must choose between a public and a private voice before the grammar is put into use having worked for several decades in north africa anthropologist lawrence rosen is uniquely placed to ask what factors contribute to the continuity and changes characterizing the present day muslim world in the culture of islam he brings his erudition and his experiences to illuminating key aspects of muslim life and how central tenets of that life are being challenged and culturally refashioned through a series of poignant tales from the struggle by a group of friends against daily corruption to the contest over a saint s identity from nostalgia for the departed jews to salman rushdie s vision of doubt in a world of religious certainty rosen shows how a dazzling array of potential changes are occurring alongside deeply embedded continuity a process he compares to a game of chess in which infinite variations of moves can be achieved while fundamental aspects of the game have had a remarkably enduring quality whether it is the potential fabrication of new forms of islam by migrants to europe creating a new euro islam as rosen calls it the emphasis put on individuals rather than institutions or the heartrending problems muslims may face when their marriages cross national boundaries each story and each interpretation offers a window into a world of contending concepts and challenged coherence the culture of islam is both an antidote to simplified versions of islam circulating today and a consistent story of the continuities that account for much of ordinary muslim life it offers in its human stories and its insights its own contribution as the author says to the mutual understanding and forgiveness that alone will make true peace possible
