12 year old curt regis lives the carefree life of a beggar and a thief homeless since the age of six he uses his guile and street smarts as well as a glib smooth lying tongue to reign as king of the street rats so when he is caught breaking into a school and is sent back into foster care for the ninth time he is quite confident that it will be a short stay he is secure in the knowledge that he will be gone again in a day or two with a new set of clothes on his back and his bag filled with silverware jewelry and maybe if he is really lucky a play station to pawn however this time his luck has run out curt is sent to what many in the foster care system consider the perfect home it is a home from which no one has ever runaway from a beautiful home where not a word of complaint is ever heard where in fact very few words are ever spoken and where the only real sounds that disturbs the stagnant air are the screams of the punished in recent decades there has been a vast increase in the use of imprisonment and penal supervision and to many this development appears to be qualitatively as well as quantitatively different the causes of this development its consequences and future course form the main point of departure for the contributors to this volume who consider the changes that have contributed to these apparently fundamental shifts in the use of punishment in this major new book contributors from a range of disciplines provide an integrated approach to a range of questions surrounding the use of punishment in what ways have broader social institutions and processes contributed to penal expansion this book is the principal outcome of the guggenheim punishment project which aimed for a truly interdisciplinary account of thinking about punishment and an outcome which was general and reflective rather than specific and policy oriented and accessible to the generalist as well as those with a specialist interest in the field emphasizes that punishment is a cultural process and also a mechanism of particular institutions of which criminal law is but one because academic discussions of punishment have been confined to legalistic preoccupations much of the policy and justification of punishment have been based on discussions of extreme cases the use of punishment in the sphere of crime is an extreme unto itself since crime is a minor aspect of daily life the uses of punishment and the moral justifications for punishment within the family and school have rarely been considered certainly not to the exhaustive extent that criminal law has been in this outstanding work
