the life of a young black woman growing up in chicago is a constant effort to find status in an unsympathetic environment this dramatic rereading of postmodernism seeks to broaden current theoretical conceptions of the movement as both a social philosophical condition and a literary and cultural phenomenon phil harper contends that the fragmentation considered to be characteristic of the postmodern age can in fact be traced to the status of marginalized groups in the united states since long before the contemporary era this status is reflected in the work of american writers from the thirties through the fifties whom harper addresses in this study including nathanael west ana s nin djuna barnes ralph ellison and gwendolyn brooks treating groups that are disadvantaged or disempowered whether by circumstance of gender race or sexual orientation the writers profiled here occupy the cusp between the modern and the postmodern between the recognizably modernist aesthetic of alienation and the fragmented disordered sensibility of postmodernism proceeding through close readings of these literary texts in relation to various mass cultural productions harper examines the social placement of the texts in the scope of literary history while analyzing more minutely the interior effects of marginalization implied by the fictional characters enacting these narratives in particular he demonstrates how these works represent the experience of social marginality as highly fractured and fracturing and indicates how such experience is implicated in the phenomenon of postmodernist fragmentation harper thus accomplishes the vital task of recentering cultural focus on issues and groups that are decentered by very definition and thereby specifies the sociopolitical significance of postmodernism in a way that has not yet been done offers a feminist theory of ignorance that sheds light on the misunderstood or overlooked epistemic practices of women in literature an ethic of innocence examines representations of women in american and british fin de si cle and modern literature who seem not to know things these na ve fools pollyannaish dupes obedient traditionalists or regressive anti feminists have been dismissed by critics as conservative backward and out of sync with even threatening to modern feminist goals grounded in the late nineteenth century s changing political and generic representations of women this book provides a novel interpretative framework for reconsidering the epistemic claims of these women kristen l renzi analyzes characters from works by henry james frank norris ann petry rebecca west edith wharton virginia woolf and others to argue that these feminine figures who choose not to know actually represent and model crucial pragmatic strategies by which modern and contemporary subjects navigate survive and even oppose gender oppression an ethic of innocence recalibrates the critical landscape revealing blind spots in contemporary models for thinking about knowledge and agency within a feminine context the author builds a persuasive case from powerful close readings of texts which invite readers to question their assumptions i cannot now imagine the field of feminist modernist studies without the interventions of this project barbara green author of feminist periodicals and daily life women and modernity in british culture this is a fascinating and very interesting intervention about the construction of knowledge innocence within the field of literary studies anyone teaching or studying this period will find it of great use new criticism and pedagogical directions for contemporary black women writers is a collection of critical and pedagogical essays that shed new light on the creative depths of black women writers on the one hand some black women writers have been heavily anthologized they have more often than not been restricted by critical metanarratives some of their works have been lionized while others remain neglected on the other hand some black women writers have been ignored and understudied this collection corrects the gaps in our critical thinking about black women writers by introducing them to a new generation of undergraduate and graduate students and by presenting pedagogical essays to our colleagues currently working in the field as a touchstone issue in american history segregation has had an immeasurable impact on the lives of most ethnic groups in the united states primarily associated with the jim crow south and the court cases plessy v ferguson 1896 and brown v board of education 1954 segregation comprises a diverse set of cultural practices ethnic experiences historical conditions political ideologies municipal planning schemes and de facto social systems representing segregation traces the effects of these practices on the literary imagination and proposes a distinct literary tradition of representing segregation contributors engage a cross section of writers literary movements segregation practices and related experiences of racial division in order to demonstrate the richness and scope of responses to segregation in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries by taking up the cultural expression of the jim crow period and its legacies this collection reorients literary analysis of an important body of african american literature in productive new directions
