while we hear much about the culture of poverty that keeps poor black men poor we know little about how such men understand their social position and relationship to the american dream moving beyond stereotypes this book examines how twenty six poverty stricken african american men from chicago view their prospects for getting ahead it documents their definitions of good jobs and the good life and their beliefs about whether and how these can be attained in its pages we meet men who think seriously about work family and community and whose differing experiences shape their views of their social world based on intensive interviews the book reveals how these men have experienced varying degrees of exposure to more privileged americans differences that ground their understandings of how racism and socioeconomic inequality determine their life chances the poorest and most socially isolated are perhaps surprisingly most likely to believe that individuals can improve their own lot by contrast men who regularly leave their neighborhood tend to have a wider range of opportunities but also have met with more racism hostility and institutional obstacles making them less likely to believe in the american dream demonstrating how these men interpret their social world this book seeks to de pathologize them without ignoring their experiences with chronic unemployment prison and substance abuse it shows how the men draw upon such experiences as they make meaning of the complex circumstances in which they strive to succeed
