diploma thesis from the year 2018 in the subject sport sport economics sport management tilburg university course master thesis economics language english abstract the relative age effect rae is a phenomenon that impacts an individual s outcome in particular the rae in sports favors those athletes that have been born prior to a cut off date and is detrimental for those who were born later in the same period the grouping of soccer players in academies benefits the early born football players in the selection for the elite team because of physical advantages that are based on biological maturation therefore evidence suggests that the effect is more likely to be observed in the lower youth categories this study examines the rae in the dutch football leagues by investigating data from the national teams u 15 and u 19 of the national team a pearson x 2 test provides evidence that the observed birth date distribution deviates from the expected one which leads to a skewed birth date distribution the findings suggest that the early born football players have indeed an age advantage in the selection system in relation to their late born peers moreover there is higher probability that they will become professional in the future also the rae seems to decrease overtime but it still exists even in the elite category a passionate haunting and moving work that tells the breathtaking story of how dutch jews survived the unspeakable and came to play a strong role in the rise of the most exciting and revolutionary style of soccer total football the world had ever seen when most people think about the netherlands images of tulips and peaceful pot smoking residents spring to mind bring up soccer and most will think of johan cruyff the dutch player thought to rival pele in preternatural skill and ajax one of the most influential soccer clubs in the world whose academy system for young athletes has been replicated around the globe in ajax the dutch the war soccer in europe during the second world war bestselling author simon kuper shows how the story of soccer in holland cannot be understood without investigating what really occurred in this country during wwii for decades the dutch have enjoyed the reputation of having a good war the myth is even resonant in israel where ajax is celebrated the fact is the jews suffered shocking persecution at the hands of dutch collaborators holland had the second largest nazi movement in europe outside germany and in no other country except poland was so high a percentage of jews deported kuper challenges holland s historical amnesia and uses soccer particularly the experience of ajax a club long supported by amsterdam s jews as a window on wartime holland and europe through interviews with resistance fighters survivors wartime soccer players and more kuper uncovers this history that has been ignored and also finds out why the holocaust had a profound effect on soccer in the country ajax produced cruyff but was also built by members of the dutch resistance and holocaust survivors it became a surrogate family for many who survived the war and its method for producing unparalleled talent became the envy of clubs around the world the netherlands was always considered a country where antisemitism was marginal but there has been a change in recent years verbal and physical antisemitic attacks have become more and more frequent moreover while in many other european countries antisemitic incidents have been decreasing since 2003 in the netherlands they are on the rise this is partly due to the culture of permissiveness which exists in the country when society closes its eyes to anti jewish acts and the perpetrators receive light punishment or none at all aggressors understand that they face minimal risks the main perpetrators of these acts are muslims however other immigrants extreme right and extreme left also participate in such acts the dutch jewish community is unable to cope with this issue and many jews prefer to keep a low profile
