this book on nanai shamanic culture is based on first hand information provided by shamans and recorded in the years between 1980 and 2012 a time of rapid socio cultural change in russia it sheds light on the lively indigenous discourse in which social factors such as the splitting of society into different paternal lineages relates to spiritual troubles that nanai people experience as collective shamanic disease but inter clan confrontations are not only mediated in shamanic rituals as these must not be separated from folk narratives dances and other forms of art furthermore the book provides profound insights into the plurality of contradictory discourses on indigenous knowledge as well as those delivered in non indigenous contexts the latter arose or became more intense in the soviet and post soviet periods and often led to experiments in new shamanic practices the book makes out a case for the introduction of a new genre of tale the shamanic story which has either been based on or inspired by a shamanic journey or contains a number of the elements that are typical of such a journey the stories featured are the book of jonah from the old testament two traditional stories from the republic of georgiaâ the earth will take its own and davit a contemporary german tale bundles and the korean story of shimchong the blindmanâ tm s daughter by making use of textual material from a number of different cultures and times the intention is to highlight the pervasive influence shamanism has had and to show how the â oenewâ genre being proposed is a universal one the research questions addressed include 1 defining what shamanism is deciding whether it should be classified as a religion a methodology or a way of life 2 considering whether a case can be made out for the introduction of a new genre of tale and if so what its characteristics are it is hoped the book will be of interest not only to those involved in the study of shamanism but also to those whose interest is in the study of literary texts since the old bearers of shamanic traditions quite often were and even today are illiterate the study of their folkloreâ epic songs laments narrativesâ undoubtedly provides a rich source for research stories have traditionally been classified as epics myths sagas legends folk tales fairy tales parables or fables however the definitions of the terms have a tendency to overlap making it difficult to classify and categorize material for this reason a case can be made for the introduction of a new genre termed the shamanic story a story that has either been based on or inspired by a shamanic journey a numinous experience in non ordinary reality or one that contains a number of the elements typical of such a journey other characteristics include the way in which the stories all tend to contain embedded texts often the account of the shamanic journey itself how the number of actors is clearly limited as one would expect in subjective accounts of what can be regarded as inner journeys and how the stories tend to be used for healing purposes within this new genre it is proposed that there exists a sub genre â shamanic stories that deal specifically with divination and examples are presented and analysed to support this hypothesis by means of textual analysis it can be shown they all share certain attributes in common the identification of which forms the conclusion of the work
