excerpt from english grammar including the principles of grammatical analysis if he is at home i will speak to him the first sentence is conditional but the verb is in the indicative mood because the condition relates to an actual state of things independent of my thought about the matter if i say if he were present i would speak to him we again get a conditional sentence but the verb is in the subjunctive mood because his being present is something that i only think of but an indicative mood does not cease to be an indicative and become a subjunctive by having if or though put before it in english and only very ignorant learners imagine that it must always be followed by the subjunctive in latin it is quite true that the subjunctive mood is more commonly found in conditional clauses than in others but that is the natural result of its peculiar function it is not an invariable phenomenon nor does it determine the definition of the mood about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
