this book brings together the themes of diet consumption the body and human relationships with the natural world in a highly original study of shelley a campaigning vegetarian and proto ecological thinker shelley may seem to us curiously modern but morton offers an illuminatingly broad context for shelley s views in eighteenth century social and political thought concerning the relationships between humanity and nature the book is at once grounded in the revolutionary history of the period 1790 1820 and informed by current theoretical issues and anthropological and sociological approaches to literature morton provides challenging new readings of much debated poems plays and novels by both percy and mary shelley as well as the first sustained interpretation of shelley s prose on diet with its stimulating literary historical reassessment of questions about nature and culture this study will provoke fresh discussion about shelley romanticism and modernity the ordovician was one of the longest of the geological periods characterized by major magmatic and tectonic activity an immense biodiversification swings in climate and sea levels and the first phanerozoic mass extinction a global synthesis of the ordovician system is presented in two volumes in the geological society special publications this first volume sp532 charts the history of the ordovician system and explores significant advances in our understanding of its biostratigraphy including more precise calibration of its timescale with tephra chronology and regional alignments using astrochronology and cyclostratigraphy changes in the world s oceans their shifting currents and sea levels the biogeography of their biotas and the ambient climate are described and discussed against a background of changing palaeogeography this first volume also includes syntheses of the ordovician geology for most european countries including historical key areas such as great britain baltoscandia and bohemia the second volume sp533 provides synthetic aspects of the ordovician geology of most other parts of the world the concept of this project is based on the premise that neurosurgeons are vital agents in the application of the american health care apparatus they remain the true advocates for patients undergoing surgery for a neurological condition yet the tenets of health care economics health care policy and the business of medicine remain largely debated within the context of politicians policy experts and administrators this textbook will ease that gap it will bring material generally absent from medical curricula into discussion it will make potent features of health care economics policy and the business of practice digestible to clinical neurosurgeons in order to help them better treat their patients the information provided in this text will also provide an excellent foundation for understanding the mechanics of running a neurosurgical practice it simultaneously addresses career progression and opportunity evaluation

it is easy to find alarming statistics on escalating violence addiction and economic inequality in developed countries and stubborn poverty in the third world the fascinating question has to do with cause new york times 1 bestselling authors richard and linda eyre s new book the turning why the state of the family matters and what the world can do about it contends that the social and economic challenges faced not only in the united states but throughout the world are the direct result of an unprecedented and widespread turning away from family the negative effects of this turning are apparent in the youth of the world today in São Paulo Brazil more than 1.2 million street children are addicted to cocaine suicide is the third leading cause of death for American fifteen to twenty four year olds Great Ormond Street Hospital in London has treated girls as young as seven or eight for eating disorders in Ethiopia nearly half of the children under the age of six work 30 hour weeks and in the past year there have been over 64 school shootings in the U.S. equaling more than one shooting a week. The book uses research findings statistics like those listed above and the authors personal experiences at home and abroad to show that families are essential to the survival and success of civilization with the well-being of the world at risk. The book will move readers in a way that will raise personal reflection discussion and action to return the family to its necessary position as the recognized and prioritized basic unit of society but far more than a book of statistics and political suggestions this is a book for parents parents who want to better understand the world their children are growing up in and who want to create a family culture that is stronger than the internet culture the peer culture and all the other influences that swirl around our children every day. As Thomas Friedman's "The World is Flat" opened our eyes to the cause and effect aspects of the global economy the book will open the eyes of readers across the world to the means and ends connections between stable families and households and the world's ability to meet its social and economic challenges. As Harvard's Clayton Christensen and best selling author of "The Innovator's Dilemma" states this book gives us a common cause and a clear way to frame and explain the causality of today's problems in the spirit of Friedman's "The World is Flat". Richard and Linda Eyre examine the connections between the world's mounting social problems and the breakdown of families and look deeply at the root causes of family disintegration the false paradigms that confuse the priorities of parents and influence the kind of policies and practices in larger institutions from media to government that threaten families both economically and emotionally.
