the world in a grain of sand offers a framework for reading literature from the global south that goes against the grain of dominant theories in cultural studies especially postcolonial theory it critiques the valorization of the local in cultural theories typically accompanied by a rejection of universal categories viewed as eurocentric projections but the privileging of the local usually amounts to an exercise in exoticization of the south the book argues that the rejection of eurocentric theories can be complemented by embracing another richer and non parochial form of universalism through readings of texts from india sri lanka palestine and egypt the book shows that the fine grained engagement with culture the mapping of ordinary lives not just as objects but subjects of their history is embedded in much of postcolonial literature in a radical universalism one that is rooted in local realities but is able to unearth in them the needs conflicts and desires that stretch across cultures and time it is a universalism recognized by marx and steeped in the spirit of anti colonialism but hostile to any whiff of exoticism boasting new extracts from major works in the field as well as an impressive list of contributors this second edition of a bestselling reader is an invaluable introduction to the most seminal texts in post colonial theory and criticism this valuable reference is an authoritative guide to 20th century french thought it considers the intellectual figures movements and publications that helped define fields as diverse as history psychoanalysis film philosophy and economics this important book by two leading scholars of africa examines a series of issues that are central to the question of the postcolonial the postcolonial paradigm and the more recent decolonial paradigm raise the issue of the universal is the postcolonial the first phase of a new universalism one which would be truly universal because it would be fully inclusive or is it on the contrary the denial of all universalism the triumph of the particular and of fragmentation in addressing this issue diagne and amselle also tackle many related themes such as the concepts of race culture and identity the role of languages in philosophy as practised in different cultural areas the various conceptions of islam especially in west africa and the outlines of an africa which can be thought of at the same time as singular and as plural each thinker looks back at his writings on these themes comparing and contrasting them with those of his interlocutor while amselle seeks to expose the essentialist and culturalist logics that might underlie postcolonial and decolonial thought diagne consistently refuses to adopt the trappings of the afrocentrist and particularist thinker he argues instead for a total decentring of all thought one that rejects all centralisms and highlights instead branchings and connections transfers analogies and reciprocal influences between cultural places and intellectual fields that may be distant but are not distinct in space and time this volume is a timely contribution to current debates on the postcolonial question and its new decolonial form it will be of great interest to students and scholars in a variety of fields from african studies and black studies to philosophy anthropology sociology and cultural studies as well as to anyone interested in the debates around postcolonial studies and decolonial thought
