an argument that choice based process oriented educational assessments are more effective than static assessments of fact retrieval if a fundamental goal of education is to prepare students to act independently in the world in other words to make good choices an ideal educational assessment would measure how well we are preparing students to do so current assessments however focus almost exclusively on how much knowledge students have accrued and can retrieve in measuring what matters most daniel schwartz and dylan arena argue that choice should be the interpretive framework within which learning assessments are organized digital technologies they suggest make this possible interactive assessments can evaluate students in a context of choosing whether what how and when to learn schwartz and arena view choice not as an instructional ingredient to improve learning but as the outcome of learning because assessments shape public perception about what is useful and valued in education choice based assessments would provide a powerful lever in this reorientation in how people think about learning schwartz and arena consider both theoretical and practical matters they provide an anchoring example of a computerized choice based assessment argue that knowledge based assessments are a mismatch for our educational aims offer concrete examples of choice based assessments that reveal what knowledge based assessments cannot and analyze the practice of designing assessments because high variability leads to innovation they suggest democratizing assessment design to generate as many instances as possible finally they consider the most difficult aspect of assessment fairness choice based assessments they argue shed helpful light on fairness considerations this project is posthumously dedicated to dr gregory dana bossart whether you knew him as colleague mentor friend family member or simply knew of him you could not help but be awestruck by his dedication intelligence thoughtfulness work ethic and passion for scientific inquiry especially for conservation of the marine environment many of his publications were seminal in marine mammal health including infectious environmental and zoonotic diseases as we collected manuscripts for this special frontiers edition it was heartwarming to hear the comments from contributors so many research scientists field biologists and veterinarians could easily have given up and said i just can t do this now especially with the added challenges posed by the current covid 19 pandemic instead contributors from around the world were determined to contribute to this collection because of their inspiration and shared commitment with greg s vision the love and admiration within the marine community for greg is phenomenal with that said we would be remiss if we did not say a few words about greg as a mentor and friend greg had a knack for helping students realize their abilities and pursue their own independent contributions to the marine mammal community he shared in their successes and worked tirelessly to facilitate their aspirations greg would involve students early career scientists and colleagues in projects introduce them to collaborators and promote them and their work greg was a genuinely caring person when he asked you how are you doing he honestly wanted to know he was always there ready to listen and provide guidance if you were to ask greg what was most important to him in life he would say god family and marine life and one could argue that he had a special fondness for manatees he believed in the beauty of nature and that god had a hand in all of it he was in pursuit of ensuring that we all share this earth responsibly and sustainably we miss greg dearly but honor and celebrate him as we carry on in our pursuits this third edition includes substantial new material on a variety of topics it s a comprehensive guide to strategic planning and covers subjects such as external analysis differentiation preemptive strategic moves internal analysis strategies in declining markets sustainable competitive advantage and much more a weekly record of scientific progress
