cultural imperialism is treated as the central critical concept in a number of related discourses the debate about media imperialism the discourse of national cultural identity the critique of multinational capitalism and the critique of cultural modernity analysis of these various discourses reveals major problems in the way in which the idea of cultural as distinct from economic or political imperialism is formulated cultural imperialism deals with issues ranging from the ideological effects of imported cultural products to the process of cultural homogenization to the nature of cultural autonomy the author suggests that the critical discourses of cultural imperialism are best understood not in terms of national cultures but as protests against the rise of global cultural modernity

Cultural Imperialism and Exact Sciences considers how in the opening years of the twentieth century German physicists and astronomers came to staff major research and teaching institutions in Argentina, the South Pacific and China. It follows German influence at these institutions over the next thirty years. The analysis, based on public and private archives in eight countries, examines how exact sciences, having little practical utility, interacted with explicitly imperialist strategies. This book provides a major reexamination of the process of cultural imperialism in several of its most dramatic settings.

Essay from the year 2004 in the subject Communications / Intercultural Communication, grade High Distinction, Macquarie University, Centre for International Communication Course: Cross Cultural Communication, Language: English, Abstract: The relationships between Phuong Alden Pyle and Thomas Fowler in The Quiet American might be observed in terms of cultural imperialism. Alden Pyle seems to want to change Phuong and Vietnam. What cultural and social factors seem to influence the attitudes, behaviour and reactions of each character? Could they be read as models for the cultural traits, outlooks and expectations of Americans, British and Vietnamese people? This essay shall answer the above questions by analysing the following points: firstly, the definitions of cultural imperialism are examined; secondly, the question of whether culture is a natural phenomenon or constructed by humans is discussed; thirdly, the phenomenon of believing in cultural superiority by particular cultures is analysed; in further parts, strategies of suppressed cultures to avoid their annihilation are described, and the question of whether specific types, as the movie's characters, can be representative for their cultures is answered. Finally, in the conclusion of this paper, the results are summarised and discussed. Many definitions of cultural imperialism exist; the term is difficult to describe due to its reference to the two other abstract concepts of culture and imperialism. Tomlinson (1991, p. 2) sees cultural imperialism as a critical discourse which represents another non-Western culture in dominant Western cultural terms. Tomlinson identifies four ways to discuss cultural imperialism: cultural imperialism can be discussed as media imperialism, as a discourse of nationality, as a critique of global capitalism, or finally as a critique of modernity itself. Tomlinson (1991, p. 19, 28) and Kottak (1999, p. 234) describe cultural imperialism as the spread of a particular culture at the expense of other cultures. In his definition, Kottak not only focuses on media effects but includes explicitly economic and political forces. Thus, Kottak's definition includes all types of effects which advance one culture. Sreberny-Mohammadi (1997, p. 50) criticises the term cultural imperialism because it reduces culture to the products of the culture industries and is often described also as media imperialism, which only focuses on the impact of modern media or multinational corporations. All theoretical problems related to this term shall not be discussed here, but it is obvious that cultural imperialism has different meanings in different academic and non-academic discourses.
