when asking how cognition comes to takes it mature form learning seems to be an obvious factor to consider however until quite recently there has been very little contact between investigations of how infants learn and what infants know the chapters in this book document for the first time the insights that emerge when researchers who come from diverse domains and use different approaches make a genuine attempt to bridge this divide this book explores the emergent and internationally widespread phenomenon of precariousness specifically in relation to the home it maps the complex reality of the insecure home by examining the many ways in which precariousness is manifested in legal and social change across a number of otherwise very different jurisdictions by applying innovative work done by socio legal scholars in other fields such as labour law and welfare law to the home law and the precarious home offers a broader theoretical understanding of contemporary precarisation of law and society it will enable reflections upon differential experience of home dependent upon class race and gender from a range of local national and cross national perspectives finally it will explore the pluralisation of ideas of home in subjective experience social reality and legal form the answers offered in this book reflect the expertise and standing of the assembled authors who are international leaders in their field with decades of first hand practical and intellectual engagement with the area this book examines the relationship between contemporary cultural representations of disabled children on the one hand and disability as a personal experience of internalised oppression on the other in focalising this debate through an exploration of the politically and emotionally charged figure of the disabled child harriet cooper raises questions both about what it means to speak for the other and about what resistance means when one is unknowingly invested in one's own abjection drawing on both the author's personal experience of growing up with a physical impairment and on a range of critical theories and cultural objects from Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel The Secret Garden to Judith Butler's work on injurious speech the book theorises the making of disabled and rehabilitated subjectivities with a conceptual framework informed by both psychoanalysis and critical disability studies it investigates the ways in which cultural anxieties about disability come to be embodied and lived by the disabled child posing new questions for disability studies and for identity politics about the relationships between lived experiences cultural representations and dominant discourses and demonstrating a new approach to the concept of internalised oppression this book will be of interest to scholars and students of disability studies medical humanities sociology and psychosocial studies as well as to those with an interest in identity politics more generally tracing the story of Red Lodge from the 1880s to the present Christensen tells how a mining town managed to endure the vagaries of the West's unpredictable extractive industries economy she connects Red Lodge to a myriad of larger events and historical forces to show how national and regional influences have contributed to the development of local identities exploring how and why westerners first rejected and then embraced western images and how ethnicity wilderness and historic preservation became part of the identity that defined one town book jacket the arrival of immigrants on america's shores has always posed a singular problem once they are here how are these diverse peoples to be transformed into americans the americanization movement of the 1910s and 1920s addressed this challenge by seeking to train immigrants for citizenship representing a key element of the progressives search for order in a modernizing america frank van nuys examines for the first time how this movement in an effort to help integrate an unruly west into the emerging national system was forced to reconcile the myth of rugged individualism with the demands of a planned society in an era convulsed by world war and socialist revolution the americanization movement was especially concerned about the susceptibility of immigrants to un american propaganda and union agitation as van nuys convincingly demonstrates this applied as much to immigrants in the urbanizing and industrializing west as it did to those occupying the ethnic enclaves of cities in the east in americanizing the west he tells how hundreds of bureaucrats educators employers and reformers participated in this movement by developing adult immigrant education programs and how these attempts contributed more toward bureaucratizing the west than it did to turning immigrants into productive citizens he deftly ties this history to broader national developments and shows how westerners brought distinctive approaches to americanization to accommodate and preserve their own sense of history and identity van nuys shows that although racism and social control agendas permeated americanization efforts in the west americanizers sustained their faith in education as a powerful force in transforming immigrants into productive citizens he also shows how some westerners especially in california believed they faced a racial frontier unlike other parts of the country in light of the influx of hispanics and asians so that westerners became major players in the crafting of not only american identity but also immigration policies the mystique of the white pioneer past still maintains a powerful hold on ideas of american identity and we still deal with many of these issues through laws and propositions targeting immigrants and alien workers americanizing the west makes a clear case for regional distinctiveness in this citizenship program and puts current headlines in perspective by showing how it helped make the west what it is today
